EpisId.Q: How to convert list of strings to integers without importing any other libraries How can I convert a list of strings into integer using only list comprehension of python 2.7? To clarify my question, I want to create a function in python 2.7 that takes any list of strings as input, and returns a list of the corresponding integer. For example, if I have a list of strings like so ['1', '2', '3', '4'] I want to get something like [1, 2, 3, 4] as an output. I want to do this
